You may also be required to work at any of NHS Lothian's sites, according to the placement of the post.

Post Summary:

The Clinical Fellow will support the elective and emergency specialist ENT surgery service based mainly at St John's Hospital but also at RHCYP and Lauriston Buildings. The department provides a tertiary ENT service to patients across South East Scotland and offers excellent clinical experience and training opportunities.

The Fellow will be part of a team of seven doctors (two Core Surgical Trainees, two GPSTs, two FY2s and one CF) and will contribute to the shared ENT/Plastics out-of-hours cover. The Department also has six ENT Senior Trainees and 16 Consultants covering all subspecialties of ENT, including otology/lateral skull base, rhinology/anterior skull base, head and neck and paediatric ENT surgery.

The post will offer excellent exposure to acute ENT emergencies and Fellows will be able to develop ENT procedural skills, including laryngoscopy and nasendoscopy, as well as operative skills in theatre. They will participate in the department Postgraduate meetings, and have opportunity to contribute to the undergraduate teaching programme for University of Edinburgh medical students, as well as involvement in clinical research, audit and simulation. The post is particularly suited to anyone considering a future career in ENT, or other allied surgical specialty such as neurosurgery, but would also provide excellent clinical experience for those considering a career in General Practice or Anaesthetics.
